The matrons give me mail personally and one of them gave me a pack of cigarettes at 3 AM. Have you ever climbed walls with a broken leg? Boy, that was a gift needed. I'm the only Jew in here, + don't think any other has ever been in this jail. You'll never believe this Harold, but I found a crammed way down between my bunk + the wall a book of Psalms (King James Version) but very much David's. Got this Harold, I just snapped it open + what did I find? PSALM VII,
HAVE MERCY UPON ME, O LORD; FOR I AM WEAK.
O LORD, HEAL ME; FOR MY BONES ARE VEXED.

Harold, the whole time I've been here I've been really praying my heart out, and I think their being heard. Whatever happens, Harold, I know I can face it, whatever. And other things are happening, like receiving an old commissary order, which I thought got lost a month ago + getting it delivered here + it had 5 extra stamped envelopes in it. And can you dig this? I just got a Mr. Pibb to drink and my stomach nearly had an orgasm just looking at it. The matrons are being so nice to me all of a sudden. It's a good thing too Harold because guess what we had for a desert today? Applesauce mixed with rice and that idiot Chicago trustee cook must have put a half of box of pepper in mine adams. I'm planning on sending a temporary request for true letter to my parents tonight. Because I got a letter from my neighbor 2 doors down from them, saying that my ex-family has become extremely quiet all of a sudden + is giving everyone the cold shoulder treatment + I KNOW it's just the old ho. Come the
