MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

Bob Bennett, son of Senator William Bennett, is currently in the Department of Justice. He is currently in charge of the Relations Branch in Washington. He is a very capable and good friend. We intend to see him in the near future.

One of Bob's new clients is Howard Hughes. He can explain the political implications of his new position here in Washington by a close friend. He has been the principal contact in Washington and signal quite a shift in the political arena. He represents...

Bennett tells me that he is very impressed with the effectiveness of his work. He knows the situation and he has been able to get into the Vice President's office. His position is very important. Maybe you can think of some other office, maybe in the State Department. The situation is very delicate. The situation with Hughes is very delicate. He has a great deal of power that can be used in many ways. Could I have your thoughts on this matter?
