

Gerald R. Ford: A Lifelong A-Plus

By ELLIOTT BEALE

Special to the Inquirer

WASHINGTON — The best grade Gerald R. Ford wants to finish in the race for the White House is an A-Plus.

Report on Man of Destiny

And that is the grade assigned by a panel of 100 leading business and political figures in a report on the man who is expected to lead the Republican ticket in the 1976 election.

The report, prepared by the Gerald R. Ford Foundation, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, which was prepared by a panel of 100 leading business and political figures, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, prepared by the Gerald R. Ford Foundation, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, which was prepared by a panel of 100 leading business and political figures, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, prepared by the Gerald R. Ford Foundation, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, which was prepared by a panel of 100 leading business and political figures, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, prepared by the Gerald R. Ford Foundation, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, which was prepared by a panel of 100 leading business and political figures, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, prepared by the Gerald R. Ford Foundation, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, which was prepared by a panel of 100 leading business and political figures, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

The report, prepared by the Gerald R. Ford Foundation, says that Ford is "one of the most distinguished and successful men of his generation."

need or presence of multinational corporations.

So why have some people, like the distinguished and successful man of his generation, been so successful?

Part of the answer is that he has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

He has a strong sense of duty and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.

and a deep understanding of the needs of his country.