Dear Mr. Vergolina,

I do not know if there is a master list of the Shaw case witnesses but if there is, the best source is that for copies of those transcripts, the Assassination Archive and Research Center, 918 F St., NW, #510, Washington, DC 20004.

As of the time the Wrono bibliography was prepared I had planned to deposit all my records at Stevens Point. But with the departure of the chancellor to be you governor the attitude changed there. When I could not get assurance that if I died they would arrange for the transportation of my archive, and I tried for a year to get that assurance, I switched to local Hood College, where it all will be and some already is.

Dave Wrono remains a dear friend

He could not get that simple assurance for me.

He does have some of my records that I'd given him earlier and of the lawsuits under which I got about a third of a million assassination pages.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Mr. Weisberg,

I am writing to you concerning a document that I am looking for. In your book Post Mortem, there is a chapter entitled "Flatulent Finck and his In-Court Spelling Bee". In this chapter, there are many references to Finck's testimony during the Clay Shaw trial. The references appear to be from an actual transcript of the testimony.

I have long been wanting to obtain transcripts of the testimony of several witnesses from the Shaw trial, Dr. Finck being chief among them. If you would be willing to copy this transcript for me, I would certainly pay the copying fees for it. Or, if you can advise me as to another source to obtain the transcript, this, too, would be most appreciated.

There does not seem to be any book that gives a good account of the Shaw trial. Indeed, with the exception of your books, most do not even mention the appearance of such important witnesses as Finck, Robert Frazier and John Nichols. Is there any sort of 'master list' of witnesses who gave testimony in the trial?

I have one more question. In DeLloyd Guth and David Wrone's bibliography, it is mentioned that your files are going to be deposited at the University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point. Since this information is from 1980, I am wondering whether or not it is still true.

Thank you for your time.

With all best wishes,
