Dear Cindy,

Thanks for the payment and the cherry note.

You have a wonderful facility for saying something brisk when I'm most pooped, kind of a remote pickup.

The only part of me not down is my spirit. We're both okay.

Even pretty stationary to make the letter prettier.

Work progresses slowly. My wife is deep in the Ray/King writing. I have notified the Department of Justice that if they do not provide the missing Ray evidence that was offered in England I'll file suit for it (and have the preparations completed).

Ray's statements may not be Ray's statements, dear girl and wise prof. Your reference is to a statement by his brother who claims he was asked to make it by James Earl (which I do not believe).

Nor do I for a moment believe there was any Cuban involvement.

"It's really wild". Right. But for different reasons. Ray is a patsy, too, but with this difference: he was part of a conspiracy. Only not the shooter.

Christmas draws neigh. You once said you'd be near here then. We renew the invitation. Then you can read the entire book, a very long one, even for me, or just what relates to an anonymous, fine young friend.

Hope you are enjoying yourself while making good grades and more, learning. Have fun, many thanks,

Sincerely,

Dear Harold,

Hello! How's my spirited author doing? I do hope you are in good spirits and your work is coming along well. My hopes and wishes are with you.

I'm just enclosing some of the money I owe you and wanted to let you know I was changing addresses.

Haven't noticed anything too new over here - neither had my professor. Of course Ray's statements sounded like an instant replay of Oswald's and it all connects up with Cuba. It's really wild.

Let me know how your work is progressing and if there is anything I can possibly do.

I send you my Best wishes

Cindy
