Dear Hal,

The crazies and the craziness get around. So I write to see if you have any information particularly letters by Harrison Livingstone that make any nasty remarks about any other critics. The truth of what he is up to is hard to credit even when it is obvious and he brags about it rather than hiding it. I was to have seen the assistant to the local state's attorney yesterday but she got sick and that is postponed. I believe he has violated the Maryland code and intend to find out.

He has adopted the underlying theme of Farewell America as his own, with some assistant in it from some of those the H.L. Hunt <sup>sons</sup> (fired as crooks. Vengeance seekers.

He has a vast army of rich and superrich Texans, old Hunt included, bankers and law firms, behind the conspiracy to kill. He then alleges that other critics, of whom he has been specific in naming Mary Ferrell, Gary Mack, Gary Shaw and me, <sup>and</sup> a conspiracy of critics who by various criminal (he says) ways have kept him from breaking the case wide open, his words. He has from our last conversation Mary and me involved in both alleged conspiracies. About all of this he has written the most outrageous letters, some of which I've been able to get and would have given the prosecutor yesterday.

So, we are crooks, conspirators, assorted criminals, slime and all sorts of other things to this sick man, who is determined and perseveres in his silliness. He really does believe all that and he also believes that we all owe him <sup>should</sup> and such subject ourselves to him, his judgement and his words. Sick enough? It is worse but this should be enough to indicate that if there are any such tirades and you can provide them I can put them to good use. I am inclined to believe he and your area crazies have much in common and may have been in communication.

Best,

Hal
