

In an unprecedented three-hour program, five argumentative authors confront each other (and the concerned television viewer) with their challenging questions:

- Mark Lane—attorney and author of Rush to Judgment.
- Leo Sauvage—newspaper correspondent and author of The Oswald Affair.
- Harold Weisberg—author of Whitewash, the report on the Warren Report.
- Penn Jones—newspaper editor and author of Forgive My Grief.
- Jacob Cohen—educator and author of The Missing Document.
- The moderator is columnist Jim Bishop, who is currently writing a book to be entitled The Day Kennedy Was Shot.
- David Schoenbrun, distinguished news analyst, will serve as host.

Serious questions have been asked concerning the Warren Commission. Was the scope of its examination into the details surrounding President Kennedy's death too limited? Doubts have been raised as to the validity of the findings. Until now, these questions and doubts have remained in print. At this point, Metropolitan Broadcasting Television presents the controversial detractors of the Warren Commission Report to the television audience.
