Dear Kevin,

The name of the black storekeeper in the Liberto matter that I could not remember when you were here is McFerrin. I made copies of only two of the FBI reports on him. I enclose them in the event you can use them.

The Morris Davis referred to in the handwritten note added to that report was a Birmingham criminal informer. He plied the FBI with much garbage he regurgitated from the papers and rumors about the King assassination. This is probably the reason it palmed him off on the House assassins.

I don't remember whether I made a separate file on him but I'm not checking because I presume you are not interested.

After you were here I was sent a copy of the Times story on your project. Because you made no mention of it I enclose a copy.

Sorry you could not stay longer and that you did not have time to read my Sartor file. I believe it holds some of his writings.

We enjoyed that excellent, old-fashioned bread very much!

Hope you remember it when you come again.

Best,
