

President's Health
Quarrel Report

FX-Finding
Draws Doubt
By Wallace

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—President Richard Nixon's health is "excellent" and he is "in good luck," according to a report by the White House medical staff.

The report, however, is the subject of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's investigation of the space shuttle's performance.

The report also says that the shuttle's performance was "excellent" and that the shuttle's performance was "excellent" and that the shuttle's performance was "excellent."

The report also says that the shuttle's performance was "excellent" and that the shuttle's performance was "excellent."

The report also says that the shuttle's performance was "excellent" and that the shuttle's performance was "excellent."

The report also says that the shuttle's performance was "excellent" and that the shuttle's performance was "excellent."

Many in the crowd waved small American flags enthusiastically as he walked through the crowd. Some had "Nixon '68" signs. Many wore "Wallace for President" buttons. Several children held up red, white and blue mittens, and many held signs they could hardly read against the wind.

Miss Penny Nantz, an 18-year-old from Arlington presented Wallace with a large portrait label of "President George Wallace." He kissed her.