

Jim, there is so much we can't keep up with everything, but a clip from the LATimes of 4/8/74 convinces me it is a mistake that I did not go after those items refused by the Office of Special Prosecutor first under Cox, appeal not even acknowledged by two AGs. That story is a synopsis of the Bernstein-Woodward book from Playboy. These words:

"...shallowness of much of the FBI investigation concerning Watergate. They say that the FBI did not bother to check out the names in the addressbooks of those arrested..."

I have sent you at least two drafts of proposed letters I would send the current AG on this. If you do not soon find time to respon I'll go off on my own. I d rather not, but there is a good chance this can be productive. Each time I sent a draft there was a currently good reason. How they can justify not complying with their regulations on response and how they can justify denying what was made publicly available I don't know. The fact is that I could file on non-response to appeal alone. However, I am not looking for more suits. I am looking for data. Please give me an answer. HW 4/21/74
