Dear Timothy and Anthony,

Thank you for the very businesslike letter of March 17, which is in accord with our understanding and quite satisfactory.

Unless you would like me to get there earlier, I will catch the train that arrives at 5:45. If that does not give us enough time for dinner that is unhurried, let me know and I'll catch the one arriving at 4:45. I'll probably want to change before speaking.

C It has been some time since I have been in New York, so I will get there earlier and try and see some people about other things. I may well leave the day before. The earliest feasible train gets to NYC 11 a.m., which allows very little time before I'd have to leave.

O I take it the train to Brewster is the Central. If not, I'll allow myself enough time to find out.

I have sent the books. They should reach you by the time this does.

P Should you want us to dine together, and should you want to invite any of your friends, parents or professors, whatever you do will be fine. Do not concern yourself about any possible embarrassment from nonbelievers. I have met so many....

Y As I told Anthony, any simple sleeping accommodations will be adequate. You have seen how simply we live.

I am looking forward to this. I think it is an excellent idea to have opposition. We should have a good evening.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Mr. Weisburg:

We are so pleased that you are able to accept our invitation to speak in Brewster on March 28th, at 8 p.m. Your fee of $200 is acceptable to us and we are holding it for you.

We are including a note on the train schedule for your convenience. Please let us know at what time you will reach Brewster so we can meet you. If it would be convenient for you to arrive in the early afternoon we would be pleased to have you as our guest for dinner. Your transportation cost will be reimbursed to you.

If this arrangement is not to your satisfaction, please let us know.

Sincerely,

Timothy Tuttle
