Dear Mr. Meyer,

You may have intended your offer other than I see it, but I do not think it will hurt you to see it as I do.

I do all this work without pay or subsidy of any kind, incurring expenses I pay by going further into debt and after 6-8 years finally get this transcript. The book itself required other and not inconsiderable expenses and effort.

However, I still can't go further into debt to pay the printer. So, my colleague, who also has a long history of doing pro bono work and also has no regular income, being younger and better able to tolerate the debt required to pay the printer only, borrows that money.

If we sell every copy printed we still can't make a real profit, the costs have been that great.

The major media offer to pay for press copies, normally freebies.

But you have to cadge a freebie in order to give out flyers?

If you are of sincere belief, do you need chisel?

If you are sincere belief, you can't offer to give these flyers out? Whether or not they lead to sales?

If you are of sincere belief, you do not conceive that the content of this book should be available to all those of principle you know, without profit to you?

Perhaps these considerations were not in your mind. In that event I thanks you. But I will not accept an offer of this nature.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

Dear friend:

If you can send me a free copy of whitewash IV I could distribute 200 or 250 of your circulars to new young readers in Philadelphia area. Thank you.
