

JL * The word on the new book is getting around. I heard it on CBS AM TV just a few minutes ago, from Clifford Case: Dulles and lying to everyone, repeated time after time while I was unable to get to the set to see which of yesterday's network talk shows he was on. I did not see any of yesterday's shows because we had company. Case appears to have been using Dulles to prove that the CIA witnesses before his committee also had lied regularly and repeatedly, to say that he was not in a position when they appeared to know whether or not they were lying, but Dulles was proof that they did. What was rebroadcast just now could have come from the news accounts of the book...However, for those who had concerns about whether we were doing it right, this should be still another answer. It also says that if we had a little real help, ranging from people who were willing to work as part of a unified and disciplined effort to a little time and money, how much more we could have done.
