George and Jeanne De Mohrenschildt flew back from Haiti to testify.

They had befriended the Oswalds in Dellas and Fot. Worth. Even before the left Haiti they were in trouble because of the investigation. The Haitian dictator, fearing afraidxxx his own assassination, the De Mohrenschildts feared, would cancel the contract in which more than a quarter of a million dol ars were involved.

In De Mohrenschildts words, "And now he associates me, being very scared of assassimation, with a staff of international assassins, and I am about to be expelled far from the country. My contracts may be bloken... Supposedly, President Duvaliar received a letter from Washington. Now, this is unofficial - one of the ministers informed me of that - in which this letter satates I was a close friend of Osweld's, that I am a Polish Communist and xxxxix a member of an international band." The American Ambassador in Haiti was using his goof xxxixxx offices to satisfy the Haitian government. (9H167)

Mrs. DeMohrenschildt complained that the investigations were not conducted with tact or secrecy and caused injury. She and her hauband were hoping to complete their appearances in time ti fly to Philadelphia in time to see a judge so they could visit his daughter by a pervious marriage. They had been told, "Under the corcumstances, you are forbidden to see your child". By the time the FBI got finished questioning the former wife and her husband and the lawyers, the message

Mars. DeMohrenschildt got was "this time George (De Mohrenschildt) did something wery big".

The Commission's assistant general counsel said, "Well, he didn't."

Mrs. De Mohrenschildt then told him, "Well, that is what is happeneing..."

She went into further details and asked if the FBI were sent to question them again, "do it in a more discreet way...You hurt us very much for no rea on at all. ... That is what happens. How can we evoid it? How Can it be stopped."

"We will see what we can do about it," she was promised. (WH350)
