

Dear David,

11/4/92

I must have misaddressed the envelope and someone must have misfiled my copy of the contract because it is not in the file. As an afterthought while I write this "il is checking to see if I gave it to her. Meanwhile, if that envelope went astray, perhaps it was with that that I included the enclosed if you want it for blurring.

I remember signing it immediately so I could return it immediately in the event you had an immediate need for it.

I remember also including a note telling you we'd rather not get any money until next year. My purpose was so you could get the interest because we'd just hold the check until then.

Now about my once-photographic memory: "il had both copies! Here it is with the FBI record you want and another that might interest you. The other is from ~~the~~ Hoover's personal and confidential file.

If the FBI continues to stonewall you on the King records, rather on Hoover's disclosed copies, as I told you, I think Lesar has a complete set.

Sorry "il forgot to mail you your copy and glad I asked her to check her files.

Best to you all,
