Dear Ken,

Not only my deak and office and the entire house hear the office is taken over with stacks of paper - it now extense to what have not been able to take care of in the basement, where most of the records now are.

Each time I get a moment I attack a stack. But when I'm busy some stack gets higher. Thus what I just got although it is a January story is on top of a stack and the story of that time is buried somewhere.

I have no idea how complete this short UPI item is but I suppose it is quite incomplete. It quotes you on a hematoma under the shoulder blade.

Can you add anything to this?

If the committee had been serious any good criminal lawyer could have found important stuff in the FBI files I broke loose and I'm sure the committee got. But remarkable little on the medical evidence or for that matter much of the corpus delicts.

One of the best sources on the medical stuff is in the traditional cover-thoass of the FBI memos. Humes changed his account after his testimony, according to some of these memo. But not on JFK's wounds- on Connally's.

When the committee was not serious I can only wonder what it acquired aside from the nut stuff that deluged it. However, I am more than ever convinced that the thing that may have a great impact yet is the "missed" shot. The FBI claims that it destroyed the spectro plate in regular houseclesting - and that one spectro plate only - and I'm telling you that before it dug the surbstone up it was patched. It is the patch that was tested.

We've been having the kind of weather that should make people wonder why they don't move to Florida. Which is and has been my doctor's advice. But it is breaking. No freeze the past two nights.

Hope you are well and that your practise is thriving.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
