

THE SEAMY SIDE Repression in OF DEMOCRACY America

By ALAN WOLFE, Richmond College of the CUNY

Watergate is not an isolated incident in the history of American politics! The Seamy Side of Democracy destroys the myth that political freedom is an everyday right in the United States.

"A very tough-minded work of political sociology that defies many traditional assumptions about the way the state operates in a liberal democracy..." (Publishers Weekly). In his brilliant study, Alan Wolfe lays bare the fact that political repression has characterized U.S. politics in this century; his theme "...deserves attention—very serious, even passionate attention."
(Kirkus Reviews) $7.95

CREATING A NEW From Conflict WORLD POLITICS to Cooperation

By DAVID V. EDWARDS, University of Texas, Austin

In light of recent events in diplomatic and foreign affairs, Creating a New World Politics is a timely, incisive, and practical alternative to the ideological politics of the hawks and the doves. In a penetrating critique, David Edwards exposes the dangerous and unquestioned assumptions of both the establishment and its critics and he proposes a novel approach that will curtail the violence and ill-fare of present-day international relations and enable us to begin the cooperative creation of a constructive new world politics.

$6.95

PARTY AND Congressional OPPOSITION Challengers in American Politics

By JEFF FISHEL, Indiana University

In a period when Congress, the major parties, and the electoral system are widely condemned for being unresponsive to the needs of many citizens, of what use is opposition to entrenched incumbents in the House? "...Professor Fishel's book is especially timely now that the effort to change antiquated procedures is at higher priority than at any time in recent memory."

He provides information and insights that can be valuable in that effort, and even manages to show that the House of Representatives has, on occasion, been innovative and a force for change in the social and economic policy." (From the Foreword by Allard K. Lowenstein) $7.95

McKAY