

If Davis provides a fair delineation of some of the activities of which Caulfield & Wessington were part as New York City detectives and of their political connections and beliefs, does he not also give us an eloquent exposition of the prerequisites of leadership and operational roles in beyond private spy out fit?