WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The government's chief Watergate prosecutor said yesterday he would not resist a Senate investigation into allegations that the Justice Department failed to pursue early indications of a cover-up of high-level involvement in the bugging.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Earl J. Silbert commented on a report in the Washington Post that prosecutors received some evidence last year before the Watergate trial in January suggesting a "coverup of high level involvement in the bugging of Democratic headquarters" at the Watergate.
