Kleindienst: No Limit To Executive Privilege

By George Lardner Jr. Washington Post Staff Writer

Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst, in a sweeping assertion of executive prerogatives, declared yesterday that the President has the power to forbid federal employees from testifying before Congress under any circumstances-including impeachment.

Testifying before an unusual joint session of three Senate subcommittees, Kleindienst maintained that the doctrine of executive privilege could properly be invoked even in the face of congressional investigations of alleged wrongdoing by White RICHARD G. KLEINDIENST House aides.

"This is a power relegated. to the President of the United States alone," Kleindienst said of executive privilege. Under it, he declared, the President "logically" has the authority to block congressional demands for any document within the executive branch as well as the testimony of any plovees.

Maine), chairman of the Sened the Attorney General's powers are being exercised. claims "frightening."

... no exceptions

"No Administration in the history of this country has ever asserted the concept (of executive privilege) as you have today," Muskie told him.

Repeatedly Kleindienst suggested that the only real limits on the President's powers. of its 21/2 million federal em- in a confrontation with Congress, are those imposed by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D. public opinion and the electorate. But he said Congress ate Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations, call-doesn't like the way those

See PRIVILEGE, A20, Col. 3

f-

By Charles Del Vecchio-The Washington Post

GARDEN WALK-President Nixon shows Lee Quan Yew, prime minister of Singapore, White House Rose Garden.

Executive Privilege Seen All-Inclusive

PRIVILEGE, From A1

"If it feels he is exercising power like a monarch," Kleindienst told the senators, "you could conduct an impeach-'s ment proceeding."

Sen. Sam Ervin (D-N.C.), r chairman of the Subcommittee on the Separation of Powers, nesses from going to court." ton.

"You put a nice question," sir, you don't."

Constitution makes the Chief wrong doing on their part. Justice the presiding officer in any presidential impeach greed with Miss Lawton and States, in my opinion, was not ment trial to guarantee its fair conduct under the rules of evidence.

said the Chief Justice could be impeached, too, if he got in the way. All Congress needs. the Attorney General insisted, is the votes.

"He seemed to be taunting us," Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) told newsmen later.

Insisting that there were no protested that even here, un-amendment, Kleindienst exder Kleindienst's standards, plicitly repudiated at one Watergate controversy has put impeachment of a President point the House testimony last a sharp edge on questions of would be impossible "because week of Deputy Assistant At- comity between the executive he could forbid all of the wit- torney General Mary C. Law- and the legislative branches, Kleindienst said he disapointed out, after a quick huddle with an aide, that she "modified her answer" before Kleindienst said. Kleindienst disagreed and the same House subcommittee at an afternoon session.

> orders?" Muskie said sarcastically, touching off a round of laughter in the hearing room.

> laughter subsided and said in flat, deliberate tones:

trine, short of a constitutional orders, too, Senator Muskie." would ever try to do so.

Acknowledging that the the Attorney General assured Designated as the administ the senators that "for crime, tration's official spokesman there can be no haven." But Kleindienst agreed. But, he in- before the House Government he maintained that the detersisted, "You don't need facts Information Subcommittee, mination of alleged violations to impeach a President . . . she took the stand that White in the Watergate case was You don't need evidence to impeach a President . . . No House aides such as counsel to "uniquely the province of the impeach a President . . . No III could not use the privilege subcommittee that the White to steer clear of any direct House has said that even Mr. Ervin pointed out that the congressional investigation of Nixon's close aides "will respond to grand jury inquiry."

"The Congress of the United set up or created to investigate or prosecute for crimes,'

He stopped well short, however, of conceding that execu-"She'd gotten her marching tive privilege can be overriden even by the courts.

"The question is academic." Kleindienst insisted. He said Kleindienst waited until the simply that "no President, in my opinion, is going to withhold his closest aides from "Ha. Ha. Ha. . . . I'm sure criminal justice" and said he limits on the privilege doc-you givey our staff marching doubted that any President