David Frost, the unlucky-in-love British TV personality, lost again. Frost, whose planned marriage to Diahann Carroll was called off at the last minute two years ago, was on the verge of marrying gorjus New York model Karen Graham, who previously had been linked with Chicagoan Del Coleman. But Coleman, no faint heart he, managed to change Karen's mind and wooed her back. And on Thursday their story had a happy ending: They were married here in the offices of Revenue Director Marshall Korshak. (Frost's favorite tune is NOT "Get Me to the Church on Time.") . . . Rose Kennedy, whose story will be serialized in The Sun-Times starting Sunday, may be sicker than . . . She's attended by round-the-clock nurses.
