Julie Eisenhower Rides Bike to the White House

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (UPI)—Julie Nixon Eisenhower cycled onto the White House grounds today, wearing blue slacks with a blue and white jersey and looking unhappy.

She went directly to family quarters to complete the chore of packing the family belongings. President Ford and his family plan to move in next week.

Today was the first time that Mrs. Eisenhower, 25 years old, had been without Secret Service protection since her father was elected President in 1968. It was removed as of midnight yesterday.

She is an associate editor and member of the editorial board of the Curtis Publishing Company, which publishes The Saturday Evening Post and other magazines. Her husband is a law student.

The Eisenhowers accepted President Ford's invitation to sit in the executive gallery during the joint session of Congress tonight.
