

11 OTHER DEMOCRATS VYING WITH MADDOX

ATLANTA, Aug. 12 (AP) — Lieut. Gov. Lester Maddox is seeking a second term as Governor tomorrow on the most crowded gubernatorial ballot in Georgia's history.

Mr. Maddox, Governor of Georgia from 1966 through 1970, is considered to be running well ahead of his 11 Democratic opponents in the primary battle. Twelve Democrats and five Republicans, the largest number in Georgia's history, are seeking party nominations for Governor and the right to succeed Gov. Jimmy Carter, who is a Democrat.

If no candidate receives more than 50 per cent of the votes cast, a runoff will be held Sept. 3 to decide the nomination.
