

Your 3/8/73 interpretation of Hunt's saying he had "here a list of four recommendations that I made well before I joined the project", that he could have jotted them down before the show, from memory, is justified. However, I direct your attention to what he did say and what he might have said, I think more likely would have said if he was not in possession of his original memo. In saying "I have here" he was saying what a man of his long experience in spooking had to know would be interpreted as I did. He could as easily have said, "I made these four recommendations", which would have covered memory, refreshed memory or possession without disclosing possession. He has also written enough to know the difference and the significance of that difference. I think he did it on purpose, as a subtle threat to those of whom he, presumably, is no longer one: I've got LOTS more. Ditto for other no-longer spooks. He is also saying he did not conceive the project. Or, don't say again that Frank Bender is responsible. HW 3/12/73
