

Larry- Tuesday evening 3/13 National Public radio had extensive coverage on the hearing on Eastern's Miami crash. I heard part while going for Lil. From what I heard I gather there was more than that seg. In that seg, however, were some close parallels to the Midway crash, which was of a different type of jet. After two days I can't be clear on all particulars. The Miami plane had aborted the first landing pass or had been ordered to. It also was at the wrong and too low an elevation. The control tower knew it was too low but asked the wrong question about it ("everything o.k.?). There was something said about altimeter trouble but in this fringe area part of it was not comprehensible on my car radio. I am not suggesting this means anything. Planes crash, altimeters sometimes are defective, pilots make errors etc. I'm just saying that there are some resemblances. No, not because of what Crazy Sherman says about this newest plot.
