

WATERGATERS. GONZALEZ, MARTINEZ AND STURGIS (SHOWN HERE WITH MRS. BERNARD BARKER)—ALL THAT MONEY, AND THEY GOT A PITTANCE. Parade

THE FORGOTTEN CUBANS

One of the saddest, most shameful aspects of the Watergate scandal involves the four misguided Cubans who, under Howard Hunt and Gordon Liddy, did the actual dirty work of breaking into Democratic National Headquarters in Washington, D.C., of breaking into the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding in Beverly Hills, of trying to beat up Dr. Daniel Ellsberg in Washington, D.C., and who knows what else?

Herbert Kalmbach, formerly President Nixon's personal attorney, and others raised more than $450,000 --supposedly to take care of the Watergate defendants, their attorneys and their families. But the Cubans got the short end of the stick. 9/30/73

It is not known how much their leader, Bernard Barker, received but, as columnist Jack Anderson recently pointed out regarding the other three, Frank Sturgis was paid $2500; Virgilio Gonzalez $1600; Eugenio Martinez $1800. Their lawyer, Henry Rothblatt, asked for $125,000 as his defense fee. He got $13,000.

Who got the rest of the loot raised from the industrial fat cats who filled the coffers of the Committee to Re-elect the President? Hunt? Liddy? McCord? Their lawyers?

The four Cubans are rotting in jail, their wives working to support their families. Others, probably more, or at least equally guilty, are free.
