JUN 1 1 1974

Report Asked on 'Plumbers'

Rep. Edward R. Roybal (D-Calif.) asked the General Accounting Office yesterday for a report on spending for White House domestic intelligence activities.

A member of the House Appropriations subcommittee that passes on the White House budget, Roybal asked for an audit on the White House budget, Roybal said he was asking the Intelligence Evaluation Committee our intelligence agencies.

Roybal said the OMB has when the contempt for the appropriations process and the public's painted in December, 1970, to improve "coordination among our intelligence agencies."

Roybal said he was asking for the GAO study because repeated requests to the White House obsession the GAO study because repeated requests to the White House obsession the White House and the Office of Man-Intelligence and the Office of Man-Intelligence agencies.

The "plumbers" unit, which was set up in mid-1971, carried out the burglary at the offices of Daniel Ellisberg's California psychiatrist. The Intelligence activities.

He charged that the with holding of the information bordered "on arrogance and contempt for the appropriations process and the public's being spent.

"There is little doubt that the White House obsession with domestic surveillance repeated requests to the White House obsession the White House and the Office of Man-Intelligence agencies."

Roybal said the OMB has taken the position that "the intelligence evaluation unit was a Department of Justice or ignition to know how its money is being spent.

"There is little doubt that the White House obsession with domestic surveillance repeated requests to the White House obsession to the White House and the Office of Man-Intelligence agencies."

The California Democrative that the with holding of the information and ontered "on arrogance and contempt for the appropriations process and the public's being spent.

The White House obsession that "the intelligence agencies" is being spent.

The California Democrative that the with taken the position that "the intelligence agencies" is being spen