James W. McCord Jr., the former security chief for President Nixon's re-election committee who is charged with breaking into Democratic National headquarters here, was released from jail yesterday after posting $3,000 bail.

The other four suspects in the alleged bugging attempt last Saturday remained in jail.

In a court hearing yesterday prior to McCord's release, Assistant U.S. Attorney Earl J. Silbert said that $89,000 was transferred from a Mexico City bank in April to the Miami bank account of the real estate firm run by another suspect, Bernard L. Barker.

Silbert said that on May 8, "Mr. Barker drew out $89,000 in cash; $10,000 was in $100 bills. Some of those $100 bills were recovered" on the suspects when they were arrested in the Democratic National headquarters.

The suspects' attorney, Joseph A. Rafferty, said the $89,000 was for a real estate deal that fell through.

D.C. Superior Court Judge James A. Belson asked Rafferty to produce sworn statements from the persons involved in the deal, and ruled that Barker remain in jail at least until Monday.

In another development in the security problems both major parties have claimed to be experiencing, President Nixon's re-election committee charged that a Democratic presidential candidate has planted two people on the Nixon campaign staff.

In making the charge, DeVan L. Shumway, chief spokesman for the Committee for the Re-election of the President, refused to name the two persons or the candidate who allegedly planted them.

"We know that there are two people on our payroll who are loyal to a Democratic candidate," Shumway said. He said the two workers are full-time employees at the committee headquarters, 1701 Pennsylvania Ave., NW, near the White House.

Shumway also said yesterday that the Nixon committee is missing two relatively important memos on campaign strategy. He had said earlier that memos were missing, but had not described them further.

The two employees were planted by one of the six major Democratic presidential candidates, Shumway charged.

He said that the Nixon campaign director, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, is aware of the problem but has not decided what action to take. The two are still on the Republican payroll, Shumway said.

Bugging Case; 4 Others Held

In other developments yesterday:

Federal sources said that the FBI and government prosecutors are moving with unusual haste on the bugging attempt case, apparently feeling that the President's campaign committee and the White House will be cleared of any involvement and anxious to prove that soon.

The campaign committee has been implicated because its security chief, McCord, was one of the five arrested in the Democrat's Watergate headquarters. McCord has since been fired by the GOP.

The White House has been indirectly tied to the bugging attempt because the name of Howard F. Hunt Jr., a former White House consultant, was in two address books belonging to the suspects.

Hunt, former Central Intelligence Agency employee and prolific novelist, was hired on a part-time basis at the White House on the recommendation of the President's special counsel, Charles W. Colson.

It was learned that Hunt arranged for the President's daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, to appear in a 30-second film on handicapped children. The film was made with funds from part of a $500,000 contract that Hunt's public relations firm, Robert R. Mullen & Co., had with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It was learned that McCord had special authorization for the use of three walkie-talkie frequencies from the Federal Communications Commission in connection with the role he had as security consultant to the Republican National Committee. The authorization was canceled this week after McCord lost his job with the committee. Police said that they found walkie-talkies with the suspects when they were arrested Saturday at the Democratic headquarters.

In addition to McCord and Barker, the other three suspects are Eugenio R. Martinez, who works as a real estate salesman for Barker's Miami firm; Frank Sturgis, also known as Frank Fiorini, a leader in Florida anti-Castro activities; and Virgilio R. Gonzales, a Miami locksmith.

Gonzales and Martinez are being held in D.C. jail on $40,000 bond along with Barker. They can be released after posting $4,000 cash each.

Sturgis is being held there on $50,000 cash bond and can be released only after posting that amount.

In releasing McCord yesterday, Judge Belson said that McCord must live at his Bethesda home, report to the D.C. bail agency in person four days a week, and telephone in the other three days.

All five suspects were arrested at 2:30 a.m. inside the sixth-floor, 29-office suite of the Democratic National Headquarters in the plush Watergate, 2600 Virginia Ave. NW.

They are formally charged with felonious burglary. However, in a criminal complaint filed last Saturday by the government, the suspects were also charged with attempted interception of telephone and other voice communication.
