Panel's Failure Evident Day Before Police Acted

By FRANCIS X. CLINES SEP 14 1971 Special to The New York Times

ATTICA, N. Y., Sept. 13-leys of gunfire and tear gas The resort to force in the Attica cannisters. prison rebellion, with the resultant death of 37 inmates and the last pockets of the prison hostages, followed a three-day had been resecured, some comattemp by outside mediators to mittee members were escorted negotiate an ending—an effort to the door, with guards glarpanel said in interviews they declaring:

felt their power slipping away "You are never to be allowed at that point, when prison au-back in the prison under any thorities demanded the release circumstances. of hostages after announcing the group's last visit with the acceptance of 28 of the inmates occurred last night, inmates', 30 demands.

some members of the 20-man be visited the yard of celiblock panel sought to re-enter the Celiblock D yard late yesterday guards were found in good conto further pursue the key topic of the inmates' insistence on amnesty for all their actions in columnist for The New York in the yard of celiblock panel and the inmates seemed to talk with hostages. The Commentarian columnist for The New York in the yard of celiblock panel and the inmates seemed to talk with hostages. The Commentarian panel is the yard of celiblock panel and the yard of celiblock panel and the yard of celiblock panel and the yard of celiblock panel pane the uprising. But Commissioner rimes, and the inmates seemed of Correction Russell G. Oswald solidly united. said there would be no further negotiations in the yard, according to a pool news reporter materials and, according to the present.

Telephone Cut Off

this morning, as helicopters aware of such visitors.
warmed up and troopers checked their weapons, memmates and hundreds of them bers refused prison authorities' shook their fists in the air when request that they leave the asked by one of their leaders:

Instead, they were restricted to the room, according to State Thursday, for safe passage to a Senator Robert Garcia, Bronx "nonimperialistic country" was Democrat and panel member never seriously entertained by He said prison officials had re-state officials, in the view of fused a request that some mem-observers present during the bers be permitted to observe rebellion. the assault by state troopers in more time and a chance to talk fully with Governor Rockefeller to present, in the words of Herman Badillo, New York City Democrat, "the benefit of our experience before he made a final and irrevocable decision."

But Commissiones Organic lating amnesty along with more mundane points such as improved food, medicine, and greater respect. "How do you know they even want you in Algeria?" asked one member of the prison population, which includes a circulation, which includes a circulation.

But Commissioner Oswald, emphasizing his previous attempts to accommodate the includes a size of the prison population, which includes a size ble number of life termers.

Mr. Kenvarta asked wheth a emphasizing his previous attempts to accommodate the inmates, said this morning at a news conference at the walls of the prison, as the popping of gunfire continued within, that the falt the prisoners were enhe felt the prisoners were engaging in "delaying tactics" that only heightened the danger to life.

15 panel members present had of the talking in early encountears in their eyes and one or ters with Commissioner Oswald two were observed praying, according to a panel member present, Jaybarr Kenyatta, a solidly built black man referred that clearly was collapsing as ing at them. One voice could be early as yesterday afternoon. heard strongly at their backs, Members of the mediation according to a panel member,

Some members of the 20-man tee visited the yard of cellblock pool news reporter, told them that four representatives of Third World Nations were By 7 P.M., the telephone used across the street" from the by the panel in a second-floor prison, willing to help them to prison office had been cut off, freedom. Newsmen present panel members related. And throughout the day were not this morning as beliented aware of such vicinity.

'Who wants to go?"

This demand, heard last

At earlier "rap sessions" attended by newsmen in the yard, Panel members had sought panel members had emphasized amnesty along with more munassault of what became of the In the room, a few of the several inmates who did much former convict and Black Mus-lim minister in Los Angeles.

The panel members caught just a fleeting glimpse of the assault and could hear the vol-

Herbie, who wore a poncho made from a blanket, a wool watch cap, and bore a long scar on his left cheek, was able to "let the rhetoric run and then get things back to earth," according to one news observer. He attempted to remind the inmates which demands required legislation and which were more likely to materialize sooner, one visitor said.

There also was a man called L. D., a 6-foot-tall black man who wore steel-rimmed glasses and an Afro haircut and was considered an articulate debater who emphasized black nationalist views.

Another was known Champ, a tall slender black man, who was described as a good crowd organizer and leader of cheers at the group's meetings.

Visitors to the D yard in the four days the prisoners were in control said they were politely escorted in and out, passing a line of inmates dressed in robes fashioned from blankets and turbans fashioned from towels.

The hundreds of inmates addressed each other as "brother" and in the final visit last evening, some embraced members of the mediating panel emo-tionally and asked that they be remembered to their familiesa hint to those present that some inmates grasped the fact that time was running out.

Panel Works Together

The mediating panel included a wide array of personalities ranging from Mr. Kunstler, the nationally known Chicago Seven defense attorney, to State Assemblyman James L. Emery, a Republican of Geneseo. Mr. Emery has a reputation as an articulate conservative in the Legislature, but the early reports of the panel's all-night attempts noted Mr. Emery and Mr. Kunstler had reached a "Jim" and "Bill" relationship.

"We had our problems," one panel member said. "There were different backgrounds, the street, the law, politics. But we worked together.

The chairman of the panel, State Senator John R. Dunne, Republican of Garden City, L. I., is the head of the Senate Committee on Crime and Corrections. His reputation for penal reform was well-known to the inmates who applauded him during one yard visit. Liberal and conservative panel mem-bers also credited him with a strong attempt at negotiating a settlement.

He indicated to close associates that he considered Commissioner Oswald's offer to meet 28 of the prisoners' demands to be historic, particularly the promises of a minimum wage for prison labor. and for a grievance committee and ombudsman.