

Clark Joins Berrigan's Defense Staff

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) — (AP) — Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark and three other attorneys have joined the defense team of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and five others charged with plotting to kidnap presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger.

New York lawyer Leonard B. Boudin, who defended Dr. Benjamin Spock at the pediatrician's 1968 trial in Boston on charges of illegally counseling young men to evade the draft, confirmed the additions to the defense team Monday night.

Boudin said that he, Clark, Paul O'Dwyer of New York and Addison Bowman of Washington had agreed to join the defense of the six, who were indicted by a federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 12.

Boudin is a visiting professor at Harvard Law School. O'Dwyer was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1968 and has long been active in New York politics.

Father Berrigan, a Roman Catholic priest, and others were charged with conspiring to blow up heating systems in tunnels under federal
