F.B.I. Serves Subpoenas—
Defense Denounces Move

PHILADELPHIA, April 16

The Federal Bureau of Investigation served subpoenas today on 11 more persons ordering them to appear before the Harrisburg, Pa., grand jury involved in the Berrigan case.

The action was denounced by a defense committee as "an illegal use of the grand jury."

The jury has indicated the Rev. Philip J. Berrigan and five other persons on charges of conspiring to destroy Government property and to kidnap Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser.

Among those served today with subpoenas was Dr. Thoma Reeves, a professor of political science at Mount St. Mary's College in Emmetsburg, Md. Dr. Reeves, who is a former director of the National Committee to repeal the draft, was also warned by F.B.I. agents who served the papers that he is "under investigation for possible violation of federal anti-conspiracy laws." He is the only one of the 21 persons thus far subpoenaed to be so warned.

The renewal of the Harrisburg grand jury inquiry began with the service of 10 subpoenas for new witnesses yesterday.

Special U.S. Assignment

The subpoenas today were issued by United States Attorney William S. Lynch, who has been specially assigned by the Department of Justice to prosecute the Berrigan indictments.

The continued sweep for witnesses was only part of the continuing activity surrounding the F.B.I. and its investigations today. In Philadelphia, a lawyer wrote the Justice Department requesting an investigation of the bureau's investigating techniques and a Quaker group made public anonymously received documents stolen from the F.B.I. that they say indicate a dangerous threat to civil liberties.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Harrisburg Defense Committee — an organization set up to defend those accused in the case — issued a statement in New York charging the Federal Government with using the grand jury to "discover the kind of defense which will be provided for those indicted."

The subpoenas, the group said, constitute "an illegal use of the grand jury to obtain statements from witnesses for the defense after these witnesses had previously refused to talk with the F.B.I. agents and is a total prostitution of the grand jury process."

In addition to Dr. Reeves, those subpoenaed today were: Shawn Donovan, of Resist, an antiwar organization in Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. and Mrs. George McVey of Rochester, identified with an antiwar group called the Flower City Conspiracy.

Mrs. Sylvia Diamond, mother-in-law of Eqbal Ahmed, one of those already indicted.

James Forrest, a teacher at New Rochelle College.

Terry McCue, of Philadelphia, a student at Temple University.

John Swinglish of Washington, past president of the Catholic Peace Fellowship and a member of the Harrisburg Defense Committee.

Sister Sue Davis of Washington, a nun of the Order of Notre Dame.

Paul Carlin, 25, a teacher at Gallaudet School, Washington.

Jack Hayden of Chicago, a member of a group that destroyed draft records in New York in 1969.

Hearings Resume Monday

The renewed hearings of the grand jury are scheduled to begin in Harrisburg on Monday. Witnesses have been scheduled through April 26.

Meanwhile, in Philadelphia, a request for an investigation of the F.B.I. was made by Burton Caine. He charged that the bureau had threatened to subpoena a client of his before the Harrisburg grand jury "and prosecute him for perjury thereafter" unless he informed on persons involved in the theft of bureau records from Media, Pa., on March 8. These and other threats were made, Mr. Caine charged, "even though my client told the F.B.I. he knew nothing of the matter."

The bureau declined to comment, but Mr. Caine's report added weight to suggestions that the Justice Department was attempting to draw connections between the conspiracy charges brought by the Harrisburg grand jury and the Media theft.

Another collection of documents stolen from Media was made public by A Quaker Action Group here today. The organization said it received the documents anonymously through the mail on April 7 and that they concern surveillance reports of the group when it conducted antiwar demonstrations at the Pentagon in Washington in July and August, 1969.

The files, which amount to a daily chronology of the group's activities and the names and addresses of all those arrested on trespassing and loitering charges, indicate that the F.B.I. distributed copies throughout the government.
