Hill CIA UnitSet to Hire
Staff Director

The House Select Committee on Intelligence will take its first formal step Tuesday after nearly three months in existence when it hires its staff director.

It has been learned that the committee will hire A. Searle Fields of Connecticut, who, as a staffer for Sen. Lowell P. Weicher (R-Conn.), worked extensively on the Watergate probe. He will direct the $750,000 inquiry into the nation's intelligence agencies.

The committee has been looking for a director since its creation Feb. 19. It was formed to consolidate studies of allegations of improper activities by the Central Intelligence Agency, Internal Revenue Service, FBI and military intelligence units.

Contacted late last night, Rep. Robert N. Giaimo (D-Conn.) said that although no formal action has been taken, "It looks to me like he's (Fields) going to get it."

Fields, 30, was Weicker's chief legislative aide during the Watergate probe.
