

WXPost SEP 19 1975

* Correction

An Associated Press article and photo caption in yesterday's Washington Post mistakenly attributed to Richard Helms, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, a comment about the staff's disobedience of an order to destroy shellfish poison. The comment—"I was surprised and disappointed. I don't shock easily"—was made by the CIA's former deputy director for plans, Thomas Karamessines.
