

Writing in March issue of The Atlantic Monthly, Gen. David M. Shoup, former Marine Corps commandant, says of Tonkin Gulf incident, "It now appears that the Navy actually had attack plans ready even before the alleged incident took place!"

For story on this article see AP 26 Mar 69, filed Misc II.

Gen. David M. Shoup, former Marine Corps commandant, member of Joint Chiefs of Staff for four years before retiring in Dec 63, and since then a critic of U.S. role in Vietnam, writing in Atlantic Monthly, 27 Mar 69:

"It now appears that the Navy actually had attack plans ready even before the alleged incident [Tonkin Gulf] took place!"

From AP, 26 Mar 69, filed Misc II.