Ford Plans to Change Congressional Liaison Staff

By MARJORIE HUNTER

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—President Ford, faced with a

Washington.

Max L. Friedersdorf, a fourth member of the liaison staff, may succeed Mr. Timmons as chief White House lobbyist.

Mr. Timmons in a statement Congress in

Mr. Timmons, in a statement today, did not confirm his plans to leave the White House, but did concede that he had discussed the matter with the President.

rost-Election Session

"I have no definite plans at the moment," he said. "I had hoped that I could finish 22 years of Government service at the conclusion of the lame-duck model."

"I have no definite plans at the Senate to outnumber Republicans 61 to 39.

White House lobbyists work long hours, often seven days a service at the conclusion of the lame-duck model." noped that I could finish 22 years of Government service at the conclusion of the lame-duck session. However, I have submitted no resignation but I have discussed it generally with the President."

The expiring County of the property of legislation and maintaining Congress.

uary, but a definite date has not yet been set.

Congressional sources said today that Mr. Ford had expressed interest in naming one or more Democrats to his Congressional liaison staff to provide a more effective link with the Democrats who control both houses of Congress.

The President, a veteran of 25 years in the House, appears far more aware of the need for sional staffs, and providing nouse and Congress in the Nixon years were often stormy, primarily because Mr. Nixon frequently bypassed his own liaison team by relying on other top aides. Such as HR Helds

Lawrence F. O'Brien, who Bill Brock, Republican of Tennessee, who was then in the House but is now a Senator.
Mr. Timmons's possible successor, Mr. Friedersdorf is a Congress heavily dominated by the opposition party, will make major changes in the staff on which he relies for politically sensitive relations with Senators and Representatives.

The large of the staff on which he relies for politically sensitive relations with Senators and Representatives.

The large of the staff on the staff

tors and Representatives.

The planned shifts, expected before the new 94th Congress convenes in January, will include the departure of at least three of the top White House lobbyists whom Mr. Ford inherited from President Nixon.

Among those who will be leaving, according to White House sources, are William E. Timmons, chief of the Congressional liaison team, and two of his assistants, Tom C. Korologos and W. Eugene Ainsworth.

man and John D. Ehrlichman, in dealing with lawmakers.

Fears Ties Will Suffer

While Mr. Ford has frequently expressed admiration for the work done by Mr. Timmons and his team of professional persuaders. The President also is known to feel that his relations with the new Congress might ultimately suffer if he retained a staff so closely associated with the Nixon Administration.

Lobbying is perhaps the least visible operation within the gos and W. Eugene Ainsworth.

The three men, according to these sources, plan to establish a public relations firm in Washington.

WITH THE NIXON Administration.

Lobbying is perhaps the least visible operation within the White House, so far as the general public is concerned. Yet, the work of White House letter. the work of White House lobby ists is highly crucial to any ad-

> Now that Democrats have strengthened their control Congress in the recent elec-tions, the White House lobby-ing effort will assume even greater importance.

By picking up 43 new seats Democrats now control the House, 291 to 144. Democrats

The expiring Congress will reconvene Monday for a post-election session. The new 94th Congress will convene in January, but a definite date has not yet been set.

Congressional country to company to the congression of the congress will congress the congress of the congress of the congress will congress the congress of the congress will congress the congress of the co good relations with Congress White House tour tickets for an aide to the late Senator than Mr. Nixon.

Relations between the White Congress.

White House tour tickets for an aide to the late Senator constituents of members of Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin and administrative assistant to Mr. Timmons was named chief of White House Congressional relations by President diana Republican. Mr. Frieders-Nixon in early 1970, succeeding Bryce N. Harlow. He had been chief lobbyist for the House.