Story says Johnson did not testify at Shaw trial after he was jailed on a charge of failing to pay a $162.49 bill at the Roosevelt Hotel, where he held a press conference just before the trial announcing "I'm the ace in the hole in Garrison's case." New Orleans States-Item, 7/24/69

Penn Jones, Jr. notes Johnson death; says the day he was to testify "as the star witness in the personal relationship between Shaw and Oswald" he was beaten up and hospitalized. Midlothian Mirror, 7/31/69

If you believe him, he was the guy who established the overt act I had the impression he did not testify because they dismissed him as a kook. Bill Turner, conversation. 8/3/69

Ralph McMillan, booked for manslaughter in death of Johnson, freed on $4,000 bond. Grand Jury may get case in September. New Orleans States-Item, 7/26/69

"Garrison personally delivered the State's opening remarks. The State would prove five overt acts, said Garrison. He listed them. Why only five? The Capitol House Hotel meeting was now omitted. Unknown to the jury, the District Attorney had discovered that the Reverend Clyde Johnson had recently been arrested and jailed for failing to pay a hotel bill. Embarrassingly enough, on 1/23, just two days after the start of the trial [with jury selection], he was charged in Garrison's own office. Scratch one overt act." [p. 250 The Garrison Case] "and the charge against the Reverend Clyde Johnson for beating a hotel bill was quietly dropped." p. 270. The Garrison Case, by Milton Brener, published approximately 12/69
