Later the newspaper said the second man was not Ferrie, but apparently was connected with another aspect of the Garrison probe.

In announcing his final yerdict in the Ferrie death, Coroner Nicholas Chetta said:

"This man died a natural death. There is no indication of violence of any kind certainly not murder or suicide."

Chetta said findings were negative for alcohol, arsenic, cyanides, barbiturates, depressants and central nervous system stimulants.

The coroner gave newsmen today a list of the objects taken from Ferrie's apartment after his death. They included a blue 100 pound practice aerial bomb, a Springfield muzzle loading rifle, a .22 caliber Remington rifle, a single shot .22 caliber rifle with an altered stock, 20 gauge shotgun shells, two Army Signal Corps field tele-phones, a bayonet, a flare gun and a radio transmitting tuner unit.
