More JFK Arrests Coming

NEW ORLEANS — (AP) — A smiling, confident Jim Garrison emerged from his guarded home yesterday and said there was no doubt that further arrests would be made in his Kennedy assassination investigation.

The towering district attorney, fresh from a courtroom victory that will make retired executive Clay L. Shaw the first man to go to trial in the assassination of President Kennedy, said:

"This whole case is a very intricate thing. It will be some time before all arrests are made. But there is no doubt about it."

Garrison's chief investigator, Bill Gurvich, hinted meanwhile that the state did not play all its cards in the four-day preliminary hearing for Shaw that ended Friday. "If we had needed more goods we would have brought them in," he said.

At a preliminary hearing, a prosecutor normally offers enough evidence to show probable cause to hold the defendant for trial.

Indications were that a bill of information, the next step in the process of taking Shaw to trial, would be filed this week by the district attorney.

Garrison relied chiefly on the testimony of Perry R. Russo to convince three criminal district court judges that Shaw, 54, former director of the International Trade Mart, should stand trial for conspiring to murder Kennedy.
