

Case Published

The University of Wisconsin — Stevens Point Foundation Press has published the legal proceedings of a precedent-setting court case in which the government was defeated in trying to deny access to records on the claim of national defense. In a civil action, Harold Weisberg, a Maryland writer, successfully challenged the classification of the Warren Commission records as top secret. The paperback book, published at $8.95 and edited by David R. Wrone, is Volume 1 of "The Freedom of Information Act and Political Assassinations."
