GENERAL TESTIFIES HE MADE 20 RAIDS WITHOUT ORDERS

Ousted Commander Admits Strikes on North May Have Exceeded Literal Rules

SAYS SUPERIORS KNEW

JUN 1 3 1972

Lavelle, at House Hearing, Insists Headquarters Was

Kept Fully Informed

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, June 12—Gen. John D. Lavelle acknowledged today that he was dismissed in March as commander of Air Force units in Southeast Asia after ordering his planes to make "in the neighborhood" of 20 unauthorized raids on military targets in North Vietnam and reporting them as "protective-reaction" missions.

"In certain instances," the general said at a House of Representatives committee hearing, "I made interpretations that were probably beyond the literal intention of the rules."

But General Lavelle, the only four-star general in modern United States military history to be demoted upon retirement, also insisted that his superior officers in the chain of command had been kept fully informed of his activities.

4 Hours of Testimony

The reason for General Lavelle's dismissal was disclosed in The New York Times yesterday.

General Lavelle and the officer who dismissed him — Gen. John D. Ryan, the Air Force Chief of Staff — testified for two hours this morning before a House Armed Services investigating subcommittee headed by Representative F. Edward Hébert, Democrat of Louisiana.

The two generals returned in the afternoon for two more hours of testimony but this time behind closed doors. A subcommittee member said later that part of the secret session was devoted to tracing the extent of knowledge about the unauthorized raids at the highest American headquarters in Saigon, the Military Assistance Command, Vietnam, headed by Gen. Creighton W. Abrams.

'Reports Were Accurate'

Asked about this during the morning's open session, General Lavelle said: "I had a lot of superiors, and I'm not saying that they all knew — by any stretch of the imagination." He added, however, that he had reported the raids to the Saigon headquarters and that "the reports were accurate."

"I think General Abrams knew what I was doing," General Lavelle said in response to questions. "But I'm positive that General Abrams had no idea what the reporting requirements were. He never worried about or sat down and debated our rules of engagement before we did it."

General Lavelle testified that he ordered the raids, aimed at targets in the southernmost areas of North Vietnam, between Nov. 8, 1971, and March 8 of this year. He took over as commander of the Seventh Air Force in July, 1971.

Continued on Page 6, Column 1

Continued From Page 1, Col. 1

The targets, he said, included "airfields, radar sites, missile sites, missiles on transporters, equipment with the missiles and heavy guns." The strikes were "very successful," he added.

Cites Enemy Build-Up

The general said that he had authorized the attacks after failing to get authoritity to begin tatacking what he said was a substanial build-up of Norh Vietnamese equipment such as tanks, aircraft and oil depots in an area 11 to 15 miles north of the demilitarized zone, which straddles the border between South Vietnam and North Vietnam.

North Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese offensive began late in March with an all-out assault across the eastern half of the DMZ at that point. In April President Nixon authorized the current bombing in North Vietnam.

General Ryan, in his testimony, said that he had removed General Lavelle from his command after an investigation — prompted by a letter from an investigation — prompted by a letter fom an Air Force sergeant — showed that "some missions had not been flown in accordance with the rules of engagement and there were irregularities in the operational reports."

3 Falsified Reports

General Ryan said the official Air Force investigation had concluded that there were 28 violations of the rules of 9 engagement involving unauthorized strikes by 147 aircraft. In Air Force parlance, a mission can involve one or many individuals attacks by aircraft.

The Air Force Chief of Staff also reported, under question- had taken full responsibility for also reported, under questioning, that three falsified afteraction reports had been uncovered by the investigating team. The inquiry was completed on March 23, General Ryan testified, and General Ryan testified, and General Ryan testified, ordered to the false reports. "I'm the commander and the buck stops here," he said. He added that level, wonderful people" who have the properties of the false reports. "I'm the commander and the buck stops here," he said. He added that level, wonderful people who have the properties of the false reports. "I'm the commander and the buck stops here," he said. He added that level, wonderful people who have the properties of the false reports. "I'm the commander and the buck stops here," he said. He added that level, wonderful people who have the false reports. "I'm the commander and the buck stops here," he said. He added that level, wonderful people "who have the false reports." Lavelle was quickly ordered were filing "what they thought back to Washington. After being offered a chance to stay in the Air Force as a two-star general, General Lavelle re- er, that he had not known of tired.

velle."

Questioned by Pike

General Lavelle was questioned closely by Representative Otis G. Pike, Democrat of Long Island, whose protests of what he termed a "cover-up" in subordinates to depict all of the incident led to today's open hearings. Regarding the false statements, the General Lavelle could have ordered in subordinates to depict all strikes as "protective reaction" and yet still be unaware of the resulting falsified documents. missions.

In other words, the reports ing system first." had to indicate that the as-saults were made in response "think it was very smart" for rules at the time, United States reports, "but that's how it hap-warplanes could respond to pened." "I believe somebody, enemy artillery or missile fire someplace got overeager," he and could even attack a mis-said. sile site after the enemy's ra-dar "locked on" a plane, indi-investigation and the resulting

General Lavelle said that he

The general insisted, howevthe falsifications until he was "It was determined by my informed of them by represent-atives of the Air Force investieral Ryan said, "that the impetus behind filing false statements came from General La-to him, General Lavelle testi-velle." to him, General Lavelle testi-fied, "I stopped all of those strikes."

'I Would Do It Again'

acknowledged that "I told my at one point, the officer, now staff that we could not report officially retired as a three-star 'no enemy reaction'" in the official statements filed by the pilots after the unauthorized it over again, I would do it again, but look into the recent again, but look into the report-to enemy activities. Under the his subordinates to fake combat cating that a rocket would be order to stop all unauthorized attacks, General Lavelle testi-General Ryan told the Con-fied, "I assigned three men to gressmen that no disciplinary find out hew we could continue action had been taken against doing what we were doing but either the pilots or their im-report it accurately." The genmediate superiors for the falsi-eral said he concluded after the fication of records, most of study that we were "unable to which are classified."