False Reports Were Backup, He Testifies

By George C. Wilson and Michael Getler Washington Post Staff Writers

U.S. Seventh Air Force commanders picked targets to bomb in North Vietnam long before their warplanes ever took off and then reported enemy fire whether there was any or not, the sergeant who blew the whistle on Gen. John D. Lavelle testified yesterday.

Sgt. Lonnie Franks thus portrayed the illegal raids as premeditated, not cases of pilots on reconnaissance missions over the North suddenly spotting inviting military targets and dropping their bombs.

Sen. Harold E. Hughes (D-Iowa), after hearing Franks testify to this in yesterday's closed session of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the situation represented "an entire breakdown in the command structure of the Seventh Air Force."

Hughes said this breakdown carried grave implications for the country, declaring that "pre-planned strikes" against North Vietnam from November, 1971, to March, 1972 resulted in a stepped-up air war at the very time presidential aide Henry Kissinger was trying to negotiate a peace with Hanoi. Lavelle was commander of the Seventh Air Force during this period.

The senator, wno triggered the Lavelle investigation after receiving Franks' Feb. 25 letter describing the violations, said the unauthorized bombing put the U.S. government in the position of "the right hand not knowing what the left hand is doing."

"The evidence" presented by Franks and others, Hughes said, "supported beyond a shadow of a doubt that there were pre-planned strikes" in violation of the rules of engagement existing at the time.

Franks, 23, a reddish-haired sergeant who appeared uncomfortable but determined as he spoke to reporters after appearing before the senators in closed session, said that he felt the "fantastic increase of missions over a short period of time" should have alerted officers above Lavelle in the chain of command that something irregular was happening within the Seventh Air Force.

The peroid he referred to, Franks said, was from Jan. 25, 1972, when he first started writing false reports as or-

See LAVELLE, A12, Col. 1

LAVELLE, From A1

March 9, 1972.

Frank's testimony yesterday made the premeditated naflicting interpretations what the former rules of en-nam bombing allowed, a key velle and that of Gen. Creighsources.

that other officers in Frank's nomination. ture of the unauthorized raids, outfit, the 432d Tactical Reconas distinguished from con-naissance Wing at Udorn Air (R-Pa.), a member of the comon Force Base in Thailand, will mittee, said that nothing he be called at witnesses today. has heard in the hearings so gagement covering North Viet- They are in position to dis- far impels him to vote against cuss the premeditation point Abrams' nomination. that Franks raised yesterday.

Charles Gabriel, commander to be released today, shows of the 432d Wing, and Capt. how one senator explored the Douglas Murray, Frank's imquestion of whether Abrams mediate superior at Udorn knew about the illegal raids when the sergeant said he was ordered by Lavelle.

told to write false reports. his office, false ones to put agree: the bombings within the existing rules of protective reac-reasonable but liberal intertion, and the accurate ones. He said the accurate ones gagement. went to the higher commands know if that included Lavel-velle's instructions. le's own office, or what happened to the reports once they knowledge of these false recreached the Seventh Air ords. Force headquarters in Saigon. The false ones, he said, went beyond Seventh Air Forceof Defense.

point in the Senate investition W. Abrams, President dered by his superiors, to gation, according to Senate Nixon's nominee for Army Chief of Staff, which must be Committee Chairman John explored further before he is C. Stennis (D-Miss.) announced ready to vote on Abrams'

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker

The following excerpts from The witnesses are Col. the hearing record, expected

Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. (Ind.-Franks said yesterday that Va.), after listening to Lavelle, two sets of reports went from asked if the general would

> · That Lavelle had made a pretation of the rules of en-

 That some reports falsiof the Seventh Air Force from fied by subordinates were due Udorn. He said he did not to a misunderstanding of La-

• That Lavelle had no

"Yes sir," Lavelle agreed, "that is correct."

Earlier in his testimony, Lapresumably right up the chain velle had told the committee, of command to the Secretary "If I had it to do over again, I would of course take greater Hughes said yesterday that care to insure my guidance there are "obvious differences" and direction was clearly unbetween the testimony of La-derstood at all echelons."