G.I. Denies Seeing Troops Kill Civilians QTET 0 S VON

By DOUGLAS ROBINSON Special to The New York Times

FORT HOOD, Tex., Nov. 19 -With his eyes brimming with tears, S. Sgt. David Mitchell took the witness stand in his own defense today and testified that he had not seen American troops kill any civilians in the South Vietnamese hamlet '

of Mylai 4

The straight-backed professional soldier, pausing several times to dab at his eyes with his handkerchief and to clear his throat, denied the Government's contention that he had stood at the edge of a ditch and had fired his rifle into a cluster of old men, women and children in the Sonmy village complex.

The sergeant, who until today Continued on Page 23, Column 1

Continued From Page 1, Col. 8

had been impassive and apparently emotionally detached from the proceedings, tearfully told the seven-member panel of officers hearing the case that while he had heard firing, he had not seen civilians actually shot down during the alleged incident.

At the conclusion of testimony, Ossie B. Brown, the sergeant's civilian lawyer, rested the defense's case. Closing arguments by both sides are expected to be heard tomorrow morning. If so, the military jury may begin its deliberations by mid-day. Sergeant Mitchell, who was accused of assault with intent to murder some 30 south Vietnamese civilians, took the stand at the outset of today's session. Mr. Brown told the court that he would "get to the heart of the matter right away."

"Sergeant Mitchell, did you shoot at any Vietnamese people near a ditch in Mylai on March 16, 1968?" he asked.

"No, Mr. Brown, I did not,"
the sergeant replid in a firm voice.

A few minutes later, under Lieutenant Calley had killed at questions of the trial counsel, hamlet itself and in the ditch. Capt. Michael K. Swan, the de-fendant's eyes welled with tears as he recounted the assault on the hamlet in South Vietnam's Quangnai Province.

the sergeant testified that he tion of Sergeant Mitchell. had gathered up about 20 Sergeant Mitchell said that civilians as he had advanced after receiving orders to set up the ditch where other soldiers out into a rice paddy.

the sergeant said. look back." "Then he instructed me to cross the ditch and set up a sergeant: defense perimeter." The sergeant said he had left the pris- but you didn't look back or inoners under the guard of two quire about it, is that correct?" members of his squad, one of "That is true, sir," the serwhom was Paul D. Meadlo, a geant responded.

shalled at Fort Benning, Ga.

In a statement read into the court record yesterday, Mr. fendant said. Meadlo, who now lives in Terre Sergeant the sometimes sharp-voiced least 100 prisoners both in the

Mr. Meadlo did not testify, choosing to invoke the constitutional privilege against selfincrimination. His statement, given to Army investigators Under the cross-examination, earlier this year, made no men-through the hamlet. He said he a defense perimeter, he had had taken them to a point near crossed the ditch and had gone were herding the people they had found during the advance. "Lieutenant Calley told me to it came from behind me. I kept." have two men guard the pris- my eyes to the front. I didn't

Captain Swan then asked the

"Can you account for the fact First Lieutenant William L. that others saw people shot and Calley Jr. is being court-mar-you did not?" the captain continued.

"No, sir, I cannot," the de-

Sergeant Mitchell recalled Haute, Ind., said that he and that he had seen the bodies of civilians in the ditch when he recrossed it later. Most of the was being cross-examined, Serbodies, he said, were those of women and children.

"Did you tell Lieutenant Calley about the people in the ditch?" he was asked by Captain Swan.

"No, sir," he replied.

"Did you know who shot them?" he was asked. "No, sir, I didn't," answered.

had a conversation with a heli- to go back into the hamlet. copter pilot who landed his aircraft near the ditch, apparently wife, Rosa, and his parents, the

"check it out."

Earlier, one of the three witnesses for the prosecution, timony, the Government called Charles Sledge, the infantry two rebuttal witnesses who tesunit's radioman, testified that tified favorably on the repu-after Lieutenant Calley had spoken to the pilot, he had then of the prosecution witnesses, talked to Sergeant Mitchell and Dennis J. Conti of Providence, both men had then gone to the R. I. Previous witnesses had ditch and fired into the people said that Mr. Conti had been lying at the bottom.

During the 44 minutes he geant Mitchell said he had fired his rifle while in the hamlet.

"I killed some of the animals by in the village," he testified, saying he did not recall how many shots he had fired.

The defendant said he had only seen Lieutenant Calley he ttwice during the military opration, the first time when the conservation of the first time when the officer had told him to place Lieutenant Calley had told him the prisoners under guard, the shortly after the officer had second when he was ordered

As the sergeant testified, his to protest the killing of the Rev. and Mrs. Isaih Mitchell of civilians.

St. Francesville, La., watched Sergeant Mitchell said that from their seats in the front the lieutenant had ordered him row. His mother, clutching a to go back into the village to copy of the New Testament, wept silently.

Following the sergeant's tesknown as a liar in the Army.