

THE NEW YORK TIMES, FRIDAY, JUNE 14, 1974

Calley's Freedom On Bail Is Ended By Appeals Court

NEW ORLEANS, June 13 [AP]—A Federal appeals court today ordered an end to former First Lieut. William L. Calley Jr.'s freedom on bail while his conviction for the My Lai slayings is argued in civilian courts.

The United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit reversed the United States District Court judge who had granted bail for Mr. Calley, blocking the Army's move to send him to military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

In a five-page ruling issued 24 hours after a special expedited hearing, the three-judge panel ordered Mr. Calley back into Army custody.

Thus Mr. Calley must continue serving a 10-year sentence while his lawyers argue before United States District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott in Columbus, Ga., in an effort to have his military conviction retried in civilian court.

He spent three years under house arrest after his conviction in 1971 on a charge that he murdered at least 22 Vietnamese villagers at the hamlet of My Lai.

The Army appealed Judge Elliott's grant of $1,000 recognizance bond for Mr. Calley, arguing that his continued freedom could have "an extraordinarily disruptive effect on the military."

C

15

In reversing, the panel said Mr. Calley's only legal grounds for bail were that he show substantial probability of success in his claim of unconstitutional treatment, and that the case include extraordinary or exceptional circumstances which make bail necessary.

"Our examination convinces us that the District Court did not really apply the two-fold standard in determining whether to grant bail to Calley," the opinion said.

Librarian Relies on Memory

GORNJA TOPONICA, Yugoslavia (AP)—The librarian of the village library here is illiterate, but he performs his duty well, remembering books by their covers. Literate farmers say that their librarian always recommends a good book.