

Notes On People

son for course of vacation, former Eugene J. McCarthy
"I expect to say something in the fall" about whether he'll run for President in 1972.

man you think.
Taylor, at the age 39, has become a grandma.
The young man responsible for turning the glamour queen into just another grandmother is her 18-year-old son, Michael Wilding Jr. The 6-pound 2-ounce baby, a girl, was born in London. The grandmother, and step-grandfather, Richard

Elizabeth Taylor

Remember Thomas Tong-yai? As Tommy the Traveler, he won notoriety by mingling with radicals as a police informant at several upstate colleges. His activities prompted a special state grand jury investigation last year after he was exposed at Hobart College. After that situation calmed down, he dropped from sight, but now, it seems, he's back at police work. Mr. Tongyai is traveling around Bucks County, Pa., as a rookie policeman on the New Britain Township force after having been picked from a field of nine to fill the vacancy. "He's very enthused about law enforcement," said Chief Dallas E. Flowers, "and this enthusiasm was one of the reasons he was chosen for the job."

Stewart Alsop, the political columnist for Newsweek magazine was hospitalized at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., with an undisclosed illness that friends described as serious. He is on vacation from the news magazine and has taken a four-week leave of absence from his Columbia Broadcasting System radio series.

ALBIN KREBS.