

Young, but Not to Tragedy

The great of the Nation and world thronged about her in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Mrs. Ethel Kennedy seemed alone in her grief as she cast a sideward glance to her husband Robert's coffin. Her escort and comforter, Sen. Edward Kennedy, last of the brothers, kneels beside her.

Children, pre-eminent in Kennedy lives, formed a tender, moving group at the funeral. Caroline and John (above) relived a casket scene of 4½ years ago. Mrs. Pat Lawford, a sister, and other Kennedy children (below) knelt at funeral mass.
