A Report on Nixon and Ky's Visit

Washington

"The Administration is doing everything possible" to prevent General Nguyen Cao Ky, the South Vietnamese Vice President, from attending a rally here October 3, Senator Gordon Allott (Rep-Colo.) said yesterday after a Republican leadership meeting at the White House.

"Every influence is being brought to bear to keep him from appearing at that kooky faction that wants to hold a right-wing deal," Allott said. Asked whether President Nixon agreed with him about the undesirability of the visit, the Senator said, "He does."

The rally on the Washington Monument grounds, climax of a Pennsylvania Avenue "March for Victory," is being arranged by the Rev. Carl McIntire, a fundamentalist radio preacher.
