Grim Pursuit ssassins

By Shelby Coffey III Times-Post Service

Washington

There have been periods when Bernard Fensterwald Jr. has stood near the hot center of power in Washington, when he was quoted and sought by an admiring press corps.

Back in 1965, when Fensterwald was general counsel of a Senate Subcommittee investigating the abuse government invasions of privacy he and Bobby Kennedy lashed out at each other in public and in private.

Now Bud Fensterwald's pale eyes narrow slightly when he says "I know what I'm doing is unpopular"

What he is doing, aside from private law practice, is oursuing a pastime that has sometimes come to be associated with a legion of fools and opportunists: He is investigating the assassina-ions of Robert and John Kennedy and of Martin Luher King

DIFFERENT

Bud Finsterwald is no orlinary conspiracy-seeker, ooking to turn a fast review of flaws in the Warren report nto an instant paperback and cheap publicity.

These days, he tries to arive at his offices at about "7 'clock in the morning when nings are quiet' to pore ver documents addressed to is own CIA - the Commite to Investigate Assassinaons. CIA is a loose confedration of people who have ritten or worked on the varous conspiracy theories.

At his own expense Fenlerwald took an "8000-mile mket" last May, traveling Los Angeles, Dallas, New rleans, Atlanta and Mem-nis among other locations. e talked with James Earl ay's lawyers, examined ides of John Kennedy's asissination, visited with the introversial Jim Garrison, and dozens of others either. fascinated or peripherally (or not so peripherally) connected with the three major political murders of the six-

REPORT

In a recent, brief breezily-styled "progress report" to his fellow CIA members Othere is no implication at all in the title," says Fensterwald with a bit of a wry grin), the executive director declared that funds were "generally nonexistent" and that the venture needed angels but none had materialized.

As the report mentions the assortment of famous and obscure Fensterwald had talked with, an optimism emerges — there were a emerges - there were a number of "fascinating leads" to be chased after and explored and not enough time to do it all in. But there is always a chance "next trip.'

To friends and acquaintances who find Fensterwald's recent activities strange, he replies with the certainty of a man who is utterly convinced of not only the correctness but the need for his work.

He feels there may be more political assassinations if the earlier ones are not solved: He resents the statement of former Chief Justice Earl Warren that there will be things that we will not know about the death of John Kennedy until 2039.

"My people don't go in with any preconceived no-tions," says Fensterwald, "We just look for the inaccu-

To document them he traveld to London early in November to look into the stay of James Earl Ray in that

'REBEL'

He does not feel that there is any immediate physical danger in his consuming avocation but he has set aside a sum of money for the investidoing except that he feels he is a serious investigator and "someone has to."

his time and personal fortune tracking down both the gossamer and what he is con-gation into his death should he vanish someday. He also has placed copies of his most. important evidence in places that would be very difficult to get to."

This kind of talk upsets those who know of Fensterwald's background - an impeccable blend of a proper Southern Jewish family, trips to Europe as a child, Har-vard, Harvard law, a good World War II record as a Naval lieutenant and the makings of a creditable career at the State Department.

"I guess part of it is that I'm a rebel," says Fenster-wald, who has had several political horses shot out from under his career of public service.

Beginning in 1961 Fensterwald was staff director of the Subcommittee on Antitrust and Monopoly and as such assisted the late Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem-Tenn.) in the hearings which sent several top electrical company executives to jail for price-fixing.

He also helped conduct Kefauver's inquiries into excessive profits of drug compa-nies, coordinated the "first, last and only" liberal filibus-ter against the government letting AT&T take over Comsat and gained a considerable audience among civil libertarians when — as chief counsel for a Senate judicisubcommittee ary led a series of investigations into government invasions of privacy.

Post Office mail surveil-lance, Internal Revenue Service eavesdropping and illegal wiretapping were probed, partially denied by officials, partially admitted by officials.

Warren report After 'the came out. Fensterwald began keeping a file on the matter but he feels it was the assassinations of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King that mobilized him to the extent he is today. He can't exactly put his finger on the closed conspiracies in the wispy "why" of what he is three assassinations. He ponders, broods, spill over with examples of incon someone has to."

So Bud Fensterwald spends phone bills down. He send reply forms with carbon pa pers attached to various cor respondents so that he wil vinced is the reality of undis- have file copies immediatel; upon return of the reply. He says a large anonymous network of informants - "many of the great admirers of the Kennedys" - report to him each day.

(OVER)

One friend and admirer of Fensterwald's abilities puts it this way:
"Yes, he is obsessed with the investigation but in the best sort of way. I always felt like he had scattered his talents . . . perhaps because he was wealthy . . . but I think if anybody can crack this thing, it's Bud . . . I've never seen a more brilliant man when he sets his mind to something."

-Times-Past Service Photo

BERNARD FENSTERWALD JR. A question of conspiracies

Same article by Coffey, in Washington Post, 23 Nov 69, printed in Congressional Record 17 Dec 69, at the request of Senator Birch Bayh. Filed Study Groups/Committee to Investigate Assassinations, under date received, 24 Feb 70.