

U.S. Aides Want More Help for Cambodia

by Iver Peterson

Phnompenh, Cambodia, Nov. 26 - United States military and civilian officials here have lately begun talking privately about a deeper American commitment to Cambodia.

Last winter, when the new American mission was still in temporary quarters and anti-war Congressmen in Washington were warning against enlarging America's commitment in Indochina, the talk in official circles here was about "not repeating the mistakes we made in Vietnam" by jumping in too fast with too much, and about the strictly limited nature of America's interest in Cambodia.
