
KISSINGER, IN CHINA, HAS LATE-HOUR TALK

The Globe and Mail, Toronto

PEKING, Friday, June 23—Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's adviser for national security, traveled to a corner of the Forbidden City last night for an extended meeting with Chinese leaders, possibly his last before leaving for Washington some time today.

The meeting began after dinner and lasted until past midnight, raising to more than 12 hours the amount of time spent in talks since Mr. Kissinger arrived here Monday.

Correspondents were alerted to the late-night session by the line of security men and soldiers strung out along a three-mile route from the rear of the Forbidden City, where Government offices are, to the state guest house where Mr. Kissinger and his party are staying.

It was considered highly improbable that Mr. Kissinger was meeting with chairman Mao Tse-tung, who has not received any foreign visitors since his meeting with President Nixon in February. It was thought likely that Mr. Kissinger was meeting with Premier Chou En-lai.
