

Notes on People James F. Clarity

The White House said that

Henry A. Kissinger would go to Acapulco, Mexico, on March 16 for a two-week vacation. The White House said the President's national security adviser had been to Acapulco before. Asked who might accompany Mr. Kissinger on his vacation, a White House Press Office spokesman said, "That's his personal life. It's not, so to speak, a business trip."

•